Snowballs in Summer

It's a hot day. Abed and Aisha don't know what to do. Their dad has an idea. "Look in the freezer," he says. Abed opens the freezer door. He sees some plastic bags with white balls inside. "What are they, Dad?" he asks. "Snowballs," his dad says. Aisha laughs. "It's summer! We can't have snow!" "I put these in the freezer last winter, and put salt on the ice. When the freezer was closed, they didn't melt," says Dad. "Now you can have a snowball fight." Aisha and Abed take the snowballs outside. At dinner, Dad asks, "Was it a fun game?" "Yes," said Aisha, "but they melted, and now they're gone." "You're right, Aisha," he says, "but we can make more next year!"
